In Touch Consulting, LLC

Dr. Shirley Turner is an Executive Leadership Coach and a retired educator with extensive experience as an instructional coach, professional developer, change facilitator, and mentor. As a result of her leadership experiences, Dr. Turner is equipped to help clients maximize personal and professional potential. Through collaborative partnerships, Dr. Turner and her clients are able to co-create strategies to deepen self-awareness, intensify creative ability, promote personal accomplishment, and cultivate a pathway to possibility for individuals, as well as their organizations.

She holds an Associate Certified Coach credential from The International Coach Federation, a Ph.D. in Organizational Leadership from the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, an Executive Certificate in Leadership Coaching from Georgetown University, an M.A. in English from Mississippi University for Women, and a B.A. in English from Alcorn State University. Dr. Turner is also a published author of one book, Catch the Spirit and Be Set Free, and several articles, including “Building Condition and Student Achievement: The Paradox” in Educational Facility Planner, 2014.

Dr. Turner is committed to helping individuals, leaders, managers, executives, and teams move forward. Through goal-setting, thoughtful questioning, engaging exercises, and thought-provoking discoveries, Dr. Turner helps her clients get “unstuck”. As a result, clients are able to take the next step toward resolving personal and organizational issues while maintaining self-care.
